FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Reynolds-Johnson Joins Expanding AMD Health Care Services Group

ST. LOUIS, March 11, 2009 — Doris K. Reynolds-Johnson, MBA, CPA, has joined Anders Minkler & Diehl LLP (AMD) as a Senior Health Care Consultant in the Firm's Health Care Services Group.

Reynolds-Johnson, a senior level health care executive and administrator, joins Jerrie K. Weith, FHFMA, and Brian M. McCook, CPA, directors of the expanding health care group. Doris will concentrate in the areas of practice operations and development, EMR selection and implementation, revenue cycle improvement and physician compensation.

"Over the past year, we have tackled complex operational and practice management issues by adding a new service line that includes revenue cycle, practice start-up, managed care contracting, EMR selection, compensation and process workflow," said Weith. "By adding Doris to our health care team, we are furthering our commitment to offer one of the most integrated approaches to financial and practice management in St. Louis."

AMD's Health Care Group provides a single source for accounting, tax, financial, management services, consulting and operational solutions for physician practices and other health care groups.

Prior to joining AMD, Reynolds-Johnson was the chief executive officer and chief operating officer of Suburban Surgical Associates. Previously, she spent 10 years at Washington University School of Medicine and was treasurer and secretary of Washington University Medical Center, a not-for-profit organization. In addition, she has experience as a senior accountant and controller at one of the Big Four accounting firms and as a university instructor.
